

Abstract of the Disclosure:

In a configuration for checking an address generator, a memory apparatus is configured such that it can store values of address signals that are present on lines of an address bus.

- 5 The stored values can then be output to at least one access point where the values are provided for further evaluation.

REL/nt